

Table with multiple columns: Country, City, and numerous numerical/alphabetic values. The table contains a dense grid of data points, likely representing a geographical or statistical dataset. The structure is consistent across the entire page, with each row representing a specific location and its associated data.

